

The Wrong Room — Mixed Tenses

HOMEWORK • WHO / WHAT / WHERE + IS OR HAS?

Same rule as before: a dependent preposition connects a verb or adjective to a person, a thing, or a place — so every question uses who, what, or where. This time the sentences use different tenses, and some use the contraction 's or 'd. Before you can build the question, you need to work out what the contraction actually means.

EXAMPLE 1 – 'S = HAS

She's arrived at a final decision about the refund.

Think: "arrived" is a past participle, so 's = has (present perfect) — "she has arrived." "A final decision" is a thing, so the question starts with What.

→ What has she arrived at?

EXAMPLE 2 – 'S = IS

She's very proud of how she handled it.

Think: "proud" is an adjective, not a past participle, so 's = is — "she is proud." The question keeps the same tense: is, not has.

→ What is she proud of?

1. Rio always relies on his business partner for advice.

2. She's checking into a different hotel this time.

3. She's already complained about the noise twice.

4. The manager apologized to the guests personally.

5. She's currently looking into a full refund policy.

6. The tour guide came from a small fishing village.

7. He's going to speak to the manager tomorrow.

8. He's finally arrived at a decision about the refund.

9. He's finally returned from Tokyo.

10. She'd already complained to the front desk before Rio even woke up.

11. They were arguing about the bill when the manager walked in.

12. She might have to speak to the hotel owner again.

13. They'll probably check out of the hotel early tomorrow.

14. She's really proud of how she handled it.

15. The whole group is currently counting on a single guide for everything.

16. She's been asking about a refund for weeks.

17. She's escaping from the noisy lobby for a while.

18. He doesn't believe in quick fixes.

19. He's always argued with his sister about travel plans.

20. He graduated from a small university years ago.

Answer Key · Gabarito do Professor

1. Who does Rio always rely on?
2. Where is she checking into this time?
3. What has she already complained about?
4. Who did the manager apologize to personally?
5. What is she currently looking into?
6. Where did the tour guide come from?
7. Who is he going to speak to tomorrow?
8. What has he finally arrived at?
9. Where has he finally returned from?
10. Who had she already complained to before Rio even woke up?
11. What were they arguing about when the manager walked in?
12. Who might she have to speak to again?
13. Where will they probably check out of tomorrow?
14. What is she really proud of?
15. Who is the whole group currently counting on?
16. What has she been asking about for weeks?
17. Where is she escaping from?
18. What doesn't he believe in?
19. Who has he always argued with about travel plans?
20. Where did he graduate from?