01 How the Game Works

rules

- 01 The cue gives you the material — you build the sentence. Each cue is a collocation: an object and the adjective it takes. Nothing else is given.
- 02 The adjective is the bridge. The adjective that closes one link opens the next: slippery → the slippery streets made...
- 03 Every link is make + object + adjective. No other verb. No because, no so. One sentence per link.
- 04 The chain ends on me. However long the road, the last link arrives at the speaker.
- 05 Change the tense, and it's a new chain. Same cues, same objects and adjectives — but the verb form is the real challenge. In class you'll repeat these chains in present simple (makes) and future (will make).

02 Worked Example

chain 01

The cue on the left is the collocation you are given — an object and the adjective it takes. The sentence on the right is what you build from it.

CUE → SENTENCE

seed The rain made the streets slippery.

the drivers + nervous → The slippery streets made the drivers nervous.the traffic + slow → The nervous drivers made the traffic slow.the passengers + impatient → The slow traffic made the passengers impatient.me + late → The impatient passengers made me late.

03 Adjectives That Break the Chain

swap these

These adjectives live after the verb but never before a noun. The children were afraid is fine; the afraid children is not — so the chain has to swap them out.

afraid → frightenedalone → lonelyasleep → sleepingill → sickglad → happyupset → unhappy

NEXT PAGE · YOUR CHAINS →

In class you speak these — nothing written. Afterwards, write the sentence you built from each cue. The cue is the material; the sentence is yours.
