Write a text for the blog: should schools have a longer break?

- 1 Write four paragraphs, about 100 words.
- 2 Give two reasons, each with an example.
- 3 Finish with a conclusion.

MARKS

In my opinion, schools should have a longer break because students needs to rest.

First, a longer break help students to relax. For example, my friend Lucas is very tired after math class, so he needs more time to eat and talk with friends.

Second, a longer break is important for the sports. For example, my friend Bia plays soccer with her team, but the break is only fifteen minutes, they can't finish the game.

In conclusion, schools should make a longer break. As a result, students will be more happy and they will go better in the tests.

WRITING TASK

Your school blog is asking students about free time.

Write a text for the blog: should teenagers play video games every day?

- 1 Write four paragraphs, about 100 words.
- 2 Give two reasons, each with an example.
- 3 Finish with a conclusion.

MARKS

In my opinion, teenagers should not play video games every day because it is bad for the health. The video games make the teenagers sleep late and they are tired in the school in the morning, my brother plays until midnight and he sleep in class. Also, they don't make the homework and their grades are lower. My cousin is a good student but actually he is playing a lot and his grades is bad. Video games are fun when you play with friends. However, if you play every day is not good. So, I think the parents must control this.

WRITING TASK

Your school blog is asking students about technology at school.

Write a text for the blog: should students use their phones in class?

- 1 Write four paragraphs, about 150 words.
- 2 Give two reasons, each with an example.
- 3 Finish with a conclusion.

MARKS

In my opinion, I think students should be allowed to use their phones in class, but only for school activities.

First, phones are very useful tools for learning in different subjects. For example, my friend Rafa uses a dictionary app when he does not understand a word, so he does not need to interrupt the teacher. He can also make a quick research and find a lot of information in seconds.

Second, phones help students to organize their time. For instance, Bia write her homework in a calendar app, and she never forgets a deadline. Of course, some students get distracted, so it depends of the rules of each school.

In conclusion, I believe that phones should be allowed in the classroom, as long as the teacher control how students use them. This way, students can be more responsible, and when they will be older, they will already know how to use technology well.

WRITING TASK

Your school blog is asking students about work and study.

Write a text for the blog: should teenagers have a part-time job?

- 1 Write four paragraphs, about 130 words.
- 2 Give two reasons, each with an example.
- 3 Finish with a conclusion.

MARKS

In my point of view, teenagers should have a part-time job, because it helps them to become independent.

Moreover, a job teaches teenagers about money. For example, my cousin Caio works in a bakery on Saturdays and now he knows how much things cost, he saves part of his salary every month.

Furthermore, a job helps teenagers to learn responsibility. For example, when Pedro was working, he arrived in time to every shift and he never forget his tasks. In the other hand, students need to be careful with their grades.

To conclude, I think that part-time jobs are very good for the teenagers, because they learn to be responsible and independent. I think teenagers should look for a job after the age of sixteen.

WRITING TASK

Your school blog is asking students about life online.

Write a text for the blog: should there be an age limit for social media?

- 1 Write four paragraphs, about 180 words.
- 2 Give two reasons, each with an example.
- 3 Finish with a conclusion.

MARKS

In my view, there should be an age limit for social media, because younger teenagers are not always ready for what they find online.

First, social media can affect the mental health of young users. For example, my friend Zeca stopped sleeping well when he joined an app at twelve, because he checked it every night, and he became very sensible to what his classmates posted. The number of teenagers like him are growing. Some people say that parents should discuss about the risks at home, but a rule from the platforms would protect everyone, not only the families who have time to watch.

Second, an age limit would protect personal data. For instance, a twelve-year-old does not know how companies use personal data to sell products and make publicity on the social media. Many apps ask for a birth date, but most of them do not control the real age.

In conclusion, I strongly believe that a minimum age of fourteen is reasonable. If I would be a parent, I would prefer that the rules were clear for everybody.
